Word 2007 will add a space between paragraphs by default. This space cannot be removed by using the backspace key. And, it can be difficult to find the option to remove the space. If you don’t want Word to add the extra space, you can turn it off.

To turn off the space between paragraphs, follow these steps:

1. On the Home ribbon, find the Paragraph section
2. In the bottom right corner of the section, click the button to show the Paragraph dialog box
3. Select “Don’t add space between paragraphs of the same style”
4. Click OK

This will remove the space between paragraphs you’ve already typed in your document.
